

Jessica Andersen Peer Review

Hyungie Sung

Hyungie was really flexible about being able to meet whenever, and really fun and easy to work with. She always finished the work she said she'd get done on time, but if she'd started them a little earlier it would have been easier to iterate even more on them, like making the email prettier.

Carolyn Holz

Carolyn was able to get the party expiration and sockets working, which were really important features of the product. It was great that once she said they were done, they really were done, with no bugs. It would have been better for our time if she had communicated more about her progress on the sockets and tried to have them done for the MVP milestone.

Nick Mohr

Nick was always on top of what we had to do and willing to fill in cracks to make sure we got all our work done for each milestone, on time and to specification. The Openshift stuff can definitely be a downer and he persevered through that. I know the end of the semester is a tough time, but chin up when things go wrong!
